ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and related method are provided which control virus damage to a computer system by restricting access to disk drives. The apparatus includes a first disk drive containing a computer operating system and application programs, a second disk drive containing user data files, and a first and second switch. Both of the switches are operable between write-enabling and write-disabling states.

c:\clients\raice\patent01.doc

09375960.121800